

GREAT DEMONSTRATION FOR GOV. HADLEY

Convention Goes Wild When Debate Is Concluded On Roosevelt Leader's Efforts To Unseat Taft Delegates—Hot Exchange of Words During Debate.

The Roosevelt delegates laughed at by the Taft adherents.

After being interrupted several times, Allen shouted:

"You haven't anything until this convention is over; then the Lord only knows what you'll have."

"Are you going to abide by the decision of this convention?" cried a delegate from Colorado.

"I'll answer you later."

"Answer me now."

Delegate Newcomb, of New York, made a point of order against further interruption of the speakers and chairman Root held it well taken.

The chairman made a special plea for fair play.

Hemenway Is Heard.

Allen was followed by former senator James A. Hemenway, of Indiana, for the Taft forces.

Senator Hemenway declared that the work of the national committee had been done fairly and regularly.

"Thirteen members of the committee have signed this protest; 25 have seated these delegates. Now, ask you to uphold the minority without seeing the evidence, without getting at the facts," he said.

Hemenway insisted that only 13 members of the national committee signed the protest.

Attacks Lyon as a Boss.

Taking up the Texas cases, Hemenway said that Cecil Lyon had controlled 5000 federal appointments in Texas; that his word had been law, but this year the Republicans of the other faction had sent a delegation not of Cecil Lyon's officeholders, but independent voters.

From the Pennsylvanians came a yell.

"How about Penrose?"

Bending over and shaking his fist in the faces of the delegates, Hemenway, his face flushed, shouted:

"Give me Penrose before Flinn, every time."

The Pennsylvanians went wild, climbing upon their chairs and brandishing their fists, they yelled epithets and vituperation at the speaker. Flinn himself took a prominent part in the demonstration.

Flinn Starts an Uproar.

Throughout the hall came yells and jeers and for a few moments tumult prevailed.

As the disorder continued in the Pennsylvania delegation, senator Root came to the front of the stand and, pointing to Flinn, he shouted:

"If the gentleman from Pennsylvania wishes to commend his cause to the just and honest members of this convention and the American people he will cease to interfere with the delivery of a reasonable and decent argument."

Senator Root was cheered.

"We will have order in this convention, or the members responsible for disorder will suffer in the estimation of the American people," added senator Root.

Flinn Is Overruled.

Then in the midst of a new tumult, Flinn climbed upon a chair and demanded recognition.

"A point of order," he shouted.

"State it," commanded Root.

"It is that the mention of personalities, Penrose and Flinn, are not in order."

"The gentleman's point is not well taken. The gentleman will be seated at once," ruled Root.

Flinn sat down.

New Jersey Man Speaks.

George L. Record, of New Jersey, spoke for the Roosevelt side. He dealt with the Arizona and Indiana cases.

A double convention was held in Arizona, he said.

The great crowds in the galleries became restless during Mr. Record's argument—it was luncheon time and after the proceedings had been exceedingly tame, many of the spectators were leaving the building. Senator Root appealed again and again for quiet.

An outburst in the Indiana delegation followed the assertion of Record that in one district in Indianapolis the returns were made up by the officials without even opening the ballot boxes.

"There was no contest in that district," shouted English wildly, waving his fists in the air.

The Lie Exchanged.

William Holton Dye, a Roosevelt delegate in the Indiana delegation, shouted at English:

"The latter yelled back: 'Liar, liar, liar,' and started toward Dye. Other members seized the two men and kept them apart."

So much disorder had occurred in the galleries that the chairman ordered a recess until all who desired to do so could leave the building.

The delay totaled 15 minutes and then Record resumed his argument, attacking the right of the contested men on the Indiana delegation to sit in the convention.

Morrison, of Arizona.

Robert E. Morrison, of Arizona, then spoke in defense of the Taft delegates from that state.

Morrison's description of the "row" made by the Roosevelt forces in the Arizona state convention caused much merriment. He said the Roosevelt people at the end of the convention marched out of the hall.

"Boiled," called a voice from the floor.

"Yes, and we remained and passed every parliamentary move that was necessary."

Colorado Man Hooted.

The next speaker was Thomas H. Devine, of Colorado, a member of the Taft forces and slated for chairman of the committee on credentials. Devine sat in the session of the Republican national committee as the representative of Colorado.

He declared the 14 protesting members of the committee had "listened to their master's voice and signed a statement, the contents of which they did not know."

Turning to the southern contests, he said, they yelled epithets and vituperation at the speaker. Flinn himself took a prominent part in the demonstration.

Defends Lyon.

The crowd at this juncture began to call for Hadley.

C. C. Littleton, of Texas, a Taft delegate, and a brother of representative Martin W. Littleton, of New York, was introduced by governor Hadley, to say a word of defense for Cecil Lyon.

Lyon has built up an organization in Texas against which the rates of hell cannot prevail," he said as he concluded.

John B. Mackay (a Taft delegate at large from Michigan) asserted that the Roosevelt people were neither open or fair minded in their consideration of the contests.

A round of applause greeted Jas. E. Watson, who concluded the argument against the Hadley motion. From the gallery came a shout of "Hooray for Sunny Jim."

Watson asked whether the delegates felt able to judge on the merits of all the cases involved in the "motion." He pointed out that but few questions had been discussed.

"Now you are not in a position to judge the merits of these controversies," said Watson.

"You are in no position; you are in no temper—if you will excuse my saying so—to judge these cases."

Watson was interrupted several times and there were renewed calls for Hadley.

Demonstration For Hadley.

The governor appeared and was accorded the greatest demonstration of the convention up to this time. Both floor and galleries were on their feet, whistling, cheering, yelling, pounding chairs, and stamping their feet.

Watson and Root joined in conversation with Hadley as he stood waiting for the wild welcome to cease.

But the tumult went on and on. Hats were thrown in the air and one enthusiastic negro delegate raised an umbrella and cast it above his head.

In one corner of the hall governor Stubbs, of Kansas, his light half gleaming, waved his arms wildly leading cheer after cheer.

The California delegation endeavored to put up their Roosevelt banners and start around the hall, but sergeant-at-arms Stone quickly halted them.

Demonstration for Hadley.

James E. Watson, the Taft floor leader, took the platform in opposition and amid applause.

Watson said he believed Hadley would consent to refer the resolution to the committee on credentials when appointed.

He passed back to where Hadley stood and they passed down to the front of the platform and stood side by side amid uproarious cheering which lasted several minutes.

The cheering became deafening. Few of the Taft delegates participated in it.

Governor Stubbs, of Kansas, standing on a chair, was prominent in the cheering.

At last New York and Indiana joined and finally nearly the whole body of delegates was on the feet yelling.

Election Officers Appointed by the Executive Committee.

A'pine, Tex., June 19.—At a meeting of the Democratic committee of Brewster county, W. M. Sanford presiding, the arrangement of the names as they are to appear on the official ballot was made, this being decided by lot. The law requires that the committee decide whether the vote shall be by majority or plurality vote, but it further provides that where no action is taken by the committee, a plurality vote will prevail. There is only one contest for a county office.

A subcommittee of five, to be known as a primary committee, was appointed by the chairman, whose duty it is to meet on the second Monday of July to make up the official ballot. The subcommittee appointed is as follows: W. Yates, chairman; R. E. Gillett, Jno. Young, W. A. Weakley and J. L. Crawford.

The following presiding judges of the primary election were appointed: Precinct 1, J. W. Weaver; precinct 2, S. R. Harmon; precinct 3, Jas. Manning; precinct 4, D. C. Bourland; precinct 5, J. O. Langford.

The committee estimated the cost of holding the election at $155. Owing to the fact that there are so few candidates for county offices, it was decided to assess each candidate for state offices the sum of $1.

Insofar as the primary election is concerned, there is only one contest for a county office, that of county judge. There is also only one precinct office to be contested, that of commissioner for precinct No. 1.

DEATHS AND BURIALS.

MRS. LILLIE TIPTON GOLEMON.

Mrs. Lillie Tipton Golemon, aged 21 years, died Tuesday at Santa Rita, N. M. She was the daughter of Col. J. C. Tipton, a former El Paso newspaperman and now editor of the Roswell (N. M.) News. Mrs. Golemon was the wife of Howard Golemon, of the Chicago Copper company. The body will be brought to El Paso Thursday morning. Funeral services and interment will be held here.

FERNANDO JOLLE.

Friends in El Paso have been advised that Fernando Jolle, well known in El Paso, had died of heart failure at his home in the city of Chihuahua. He is survived by a widow and brother, both temporary residents of this city.

HAD MORE SENSE THAN OWNER.

A few days ago on Boylston street, writes a correspondent of Our Daily Animals, I saw a cab driver, who was waiting for a job, put his arms around his horse's neck, hug him with affection, and talk to him caressingly, as a mother might talk to her baby. I stopped and asked him how much he supported the horse understood of what he said. Looking at me, I thought, rather reprovingly, he answered: "Of course he understands it all. Why, that 29 year old horse knows a great deal more than I do." "How do you make that out?" I said. "Why," said he, "he knows enough not to get drunk and I don't."

A QUITTER.

The young man wanted an understanding before he proposed. "Can you wash dishes?" he asked. "Oh, yes," said the girl. "Can you wipe 'em?"

He didn't propose.—Kansas City Journal.

HOMERUN BAKER DEFEATS WASHINGTON; BREAKS LUCK.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 19.—Washington's wonderful winning streak was today broken by the Philadelphia American league team.

The local team tied the score in the ninth inning, the score up to that inning standing 1 to 6 in favor of Washington. With two out and two strikes called "Home Run" Baker hit the ball over the fence, tying the score. In the next inning Philadelphia got the odd run and won the game. Washington had won 17 straight games.

whole for Hadley was apparent all day today.

New Jersey uprooting its sign, led a procession up the aisle.

Missouri, North Carolina, Kansas and Oklahoma followed. The noise was deafening.

Tremendous Ovation.

Ohio and Nebraska joined the yelling parade. Massachusetts, California and Minnesota followed.

Pennsylvania and South Dakota also took a hand.

There was a tremendous ovation to Hadley and Watson, lasting many minutes. A dozen or more delegations, all yelling at the top of their voices, marched around the hall amid tremendous thunderous noise.

The uproar showed no diminution after 20 minutes.

In the midst of the ovation to Hadley, Illinois was trying to start the refrain "We Want Teddy."

It was just under the great volume of steady cheering.

"Hadley For President."

W. H. Coleman, of Pittsburg, Pa., rushed to the stage shouting "Hadley, the next president of the United States," leaping and waving his arms. The crowd never changed its steady roar.

Girl Waves Teddy's Picture.

A beautiful woman in the gallery waved a picture of Roosevelt, waving her handkerchief and throwing kisses to the crowd. They saw her in a moment and then it was pandemonium.

The racket had lasted half an hour and was more deafening than ever. The woman proved to be Mrs. W. A. Davis, 321 Draxel boulevard, Chicago.

The Oklahoma and Nebraska delegations went up and led Mrs. Davis down to the press section, at the right of the platform, where she again led the great volume of cheering. Some of them carried her on their shoulders to the platform.

It was 45 minutes then since the racket began.

At last chairman Root began to pound for order.

Quiet Restored.

Mrs. Davis returned to her place in the gallery but the racket continued despite the chairman's pounding.

At last after about 45 minutes, quiet was restored and governor Hadley spoke.

Governor Hadley said there was no misunderstanding between himself and Mr. Watson "or other honorable men."

He said he would favor referring the resolution but in such a way that no man should be a judge in his own case.

Jockeying With Motions.

Watson moved to refer the Hadley resolution to the credentials committee.

The Missouri banners were waved on high and the delegates started around the hall.

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, moved as an amendment to Hadley's resolution that no man whose seat was con-
